RE: Industrial Designer on Indeed.com

Dear HR Manager/HR Team,

I am writing to apply for the position of Soldiworks Industrial Designer for engineering firm, which was advertised online on Indeed job portal. My expertise lies in utilizing SolidWorks software to create intricate and complex designs for large-scale, multimillion-dollar marine projects. From creating technical drawings and advising on materials and fabrication procedures to working closely with technicians and engineers and driving achievement of client objectives, I have proven success in facilitating and leading all phases of all marine and port projects design and planning which majorly includes Weldments parts, sheet metal parts, lift door parts, steel structure heavy frames (connecting to fender), walkways and Platform for fender system maintenance, Steel Ladder, Rubber Ladder and chains (open and stud) based, structure design based on Australian standard(AS4100).

In support of my application I have attached my resume. It refers to the skills that are required for the desired position. Below are the highlights of it:

- Excelled throughout my progressive career with Trelleborg, culminating in my most current role as a Design Engineer, in which I work closely with project managers (APAC region- Australia, Singapore, China & Japan) and engineers to prepare technical drawings for marine projects valued at up to $25M.
- Organizing and managing detailed drawing files and records throughout project duration using EPDM(Enterprise Project Data Management).
- Contributing to project meetings, schedule management, technical documentation and instructions with detailed report generation.
- Proficient expertise in SoildWorks 3D modelling and 2D Drafting along with intermediate skill in MS Excel ,Outlook, Teams and Skype.
- With my proven experience in marine project design, coupled with my superior communication, analytical, and time management abilities, I believe I could swiftly surpass your expectations for this role.

I look forward to discussing the position in further detail.

Thank you for your consideration.

Yours sincerely,
Tushar Goswami
